Kanafani and McGovern snubs bid, Okamoto insists on floor fight VESTERDAY afternoon the

I funeral was held of the P.L.O. leader Ghassan Kanafani, who was killed when his car blew up in a Beirut street on Saturday. It attracted thousands, but passed off quietly, without the further attempts on the lives of terrorist leaders that the latter appear to have feared.

The wires hummed, at the same time, with bombastic threats against Israel for allegedly having master-minded, if not actually carried out, Saturday's assassination.

Clearly, the Beirut leaders feel that there would have been poetic justice in the killing of Kanafani just 48 hours before the trial was due to open in Israel of Kozo Okamoto, the lone survivor of the three Bei-rut-trained Japanese who car-tied out the moreover to de ried out the massacre at Lod Airport last month, killing 24 persons and wounding some 70 more. Kanafani, the official spokesman for the P.L.O., had not only praised the massacre as a heroic and justified millitary action, but bragged of having organized it.

Morally speaking, he should be on trial together with Okamoto, who has become the vic-tim of the terrorists' conspiracy as much as the people who died at Lod. Kanafani not only incited them to mass murder in the service of his own cause, he also deceived them shabbily: the three Japanese, it has mean-while been learned, by no means expected to die as a suicide squad, but had been promised a last-minuta commando-style rescue by helicopter. This may have been the reason why one of the them ran outside onto the tarmac in the hope of escape, which seemed so unlikely.

There can never have been the slightest idea of carrying out such a rescue at Lod, even if Dr. Habash's men had the equipment and training, and the pro-mise was altogether fraudulent. Because of the history of Ja-panese kanakaze squads in Ja-pan's own wars, the willingness of the three wars, the willingness of the three young men to sacri-fice their lives for Kanafani and the P.L.O. would at least appear more credible to outsiders than if they had belonged to some other nation:

Mourners shouted the traditional cry of "with blood and soul we shall redeem you martyr" as the 36year-old writer was buried in the Palestinian "martyrs' cemetery," next to a refugee camp on the outskirts of Beirut.

The terrorists reportedly were the only public authority in the proces-sion which included jeeps carrying armed terrorists. Lebanese security forces were not seen along the route of the funeral, sources said.

The procession was headed by representatives of Beirut-based left-wing parties and Arab embassies in the Lebanese capital. Visiting South Yemen Minister of Information Abdullah al-Khameri was also among an the marchers.

The absence of the terrorist leadership was evident, Beirut's "Al-Hayat" newspaper earlier said that the terrorist leaders feared that they might be targets for further assassinations. The paper said that the terrorist leadership had been placed on full elert against further possible attempts on their lives.

The Israeli Foreign Ministry was reported yesterday to have sharply rejected an offer from the Ugandan Government to purchase the building formerly occupied by the Is-raeli ambassador in Kampala.

The rejection was made in a note passed on to the Italian Government which has been representing Israeli interests in Uganda since relations between Jerusalem and Kampala were broken three months ago.

> The dramatic accusation came from Okamoto's defence attorney, Mr. Max Kritzman, after the accused's written confession was presented to the court on the opening day of the trial, held under tight security at a military tribunal here.

Okamoto, 24, is charged with parti-cipating in the Lod Airport massacre on May 30 in which 24 people were killed and 70 others injured.

Ignoring the advice of his lawyer, Okamoto pleaded guilty to all four charges against him. But the threeman military court turned down the plea and said it would not consider his statement about the Lod attack admission of guilt.

NO EMOTION

Passive, apart from an occasional smile, the diminutive Japanese answered each specific charge in detail. "I do not know how many people I killed, but I do not deny the charges against me," he said with no show of emotion.

He insisted that he did not only shoot at tourists and visitors "but at policemen as well," and objected that he and his two companions had acted in the service of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palesyesterday an interesting detail on the methods of the Japanese's "partners" - the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine. The prosecutor said that the Japanese assassing had been ordered to destroy the photographs in their passports after they arrived in Lod (which they did). They were also ordered to commit suicide in such a way as to render their faces unidentifiable. The reason for this, the prosecutor said, was to enable the P.F.L.P. to claim afterwards that the three "heroes" were Arabs — named Bassam, Ahmed and Salah (Itim) together with the Popular Front. We acted in partnership."

Okamoto's admission of guilt came as a complete surprise to Mr. Kritzman and his associate, Mr. David Roth-Levy. They said later that only half an hour before the proceedings started Okamoto had agreed to keep silent. (Had the court accepted the

CHINA NOW COOPERATING TO AID NORTH VIETNAM Hanoi getting Soviet tanks

By JAMES PRINGLE PERING (Reuter). - New Soviet tanks to replace North Vietnam's losses in the waning offensive in South Vietnam are still crossing China by rail, diplomatic sources said here today.

The sources noted that tank reinforcements indicate that North Vietnam is not planning to turn from the conventional war waged throughout the offensive to revert to protracted guerrilla tactics as some commentators have suggested.

Envoys resident in Peking who made a visit a few days ago to the Great Wall of China said they noticed 17 Soviet tanks China said they noticed 17 Soviet that aboard a train travelling south on the railway line from Mongolia. This line, which runs parallel with the Great Wall road at this point, is one of two tracks inking the Trans-Siberian railway with China; the other being in north-east China or Youmer Manchuria

At the same time there are indications in Peking that the Soviet Junion is now more satisfied with China's efforts to keep up the flow of Soviet military supplies to North Vietnam. Russian and East European Million to have not set the same diplomats here who until recently had been complaining that China was not doing enough" to tranship supplies have in the past few days projected a picture of increased Chinese cooperation.

But there are no converse indications here that China has sent engineers or labourers into North Vietnam to assist in repairing American bomb damage to match its aid from 1965 to 1968 when about 40,000 Chinese volunteers helped to keep road and rail links open. Diplomats in the Chinese capital in close contact with the North Vietnamese say there is apparently no foundation to reports pub-lished in Washington that such aid has been resumed.

U.S. bombing

However, it is not ruled out that China will send such assistance in future if North Vietnam proves to be suffering significant disability through American bombing and the mining of North Vietnam's ports ordered by President Nixon on May 8.

The United States is thought here to have been unsuccessful in persuading China to re-duce its own aid to North Vietnam despite Peking's own interest in an Indo-China settiement

Dr. Henry Kissinger, President Nixon's foreign affains adviser, is believed to have been politely but finally rebuiled when he raised the issue again in his talks with Chinese Premier Chou En-lai in Peking late last month.

Soviet-built North Vietnamese PT-76 tank knocked out during fighting north of Hue. Saigon reports say that more than two-thirds of North Vietnam's tanks have been destroyed during Hanoi's current offensive. (AP)

Mr. Chou said at a banquet on Sunday night in Peking's Great Hall of the People that the U.S. bombing, mining and blockad-ing would stimulate the people of China and elsewhere to even greater sympathy and sup-port for the Vietnamese and other Indo-

Chinese peoples. Some observers say this as a possible hint to the United States just before the resump-tion next Thursday of the Paris peace talks that the return of engineers was a possibility unless Washington reduced the scale of bomb-

These observers noted that logistics assistance could be rendered at first within a 40-kilometre area near the Chinese border where American planes have not bombed since Peking said such attacks were a threat to China's security.

No obstacle

On the apparently friendlier Soviet refe-rences to China's role in transhipping war material, observers here recalled that in early May immediately after the imposition of the American blockade Soviet diplomats here reported full Chinese cooperation.

At the same time Chinese leaders told foreign envoys no obstacle would be put in the way of Russian assistance for Hanoi crossing China

However, things apparently worked out less well in practice and reports from Moscow later indicated that Soviet citizens were being told in political lectures that China was showing a lack of cooperation in the common effort to assist North Vietnam.

Observers feel the new Soviet attitude indicates either that the Russians now fully understand China's own logistics problems or that Peking has given the green light for more Soviet war material to cross China.

Russian ban

Diplomats here are pointing to reports from Moscow that Russia has banned all tra-vel by foreign diplomats and correspondents east of the Volga River.

In the absence of reports of heightened tension along the Sino-Soviet border, this could indicate major shipments of military supplies for North Vietnam along the Trans-Siberian railway.

Envoys here also note the apparent con-tinued interest in tanks by the North Vietnamese National Defence Minister and war strategist, General Giap.

Reports from Saigon say that by conserva estimates 470 of North Vietnam's 650 tanks have been knocked out during the offensive, often by new wire-guided missiles.

PARIS, (UPI). - Japan's new Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka said in an interview published yesterday that his Government will soon start government-level talks with Peking. He told the weekly magazine "L'Express" the conditions were favourable for an improvement of relations with Communist China. Tanaka also said Japan, under his leadership, will try to balance out economic growth entailing heavy pollution problems with the need to keep increasing the population's liv-ing standard by changing part of the heavy industry into light industry.

Asked whether Japan has forfeited its chance of normalizing its relations with China, Tanaka said, "We used to say: "One must not count the years of a dead child. It's the future that interests me." Asked about the possibility of a trip by the Prime Minister to Peking, Ta-naka said: The Sino-Japanese problem has been pending for a quarter century. But we have 2000 years of common history. One must be patient - and now, the atmosphere is favourable."

Philippe Mireau, the magazine's correspondent, asked Tanaka what was the difference between himself and other Japanese politicians who keep talking of a rapprochement with Peking. Tanaka said: "The me-thod. Some are in a hurry and others are less so. Myself, I am in a hurry by nature. But I also can wait for the propitious moment. But I already can tell you this: talks between the Chinese and Japanese Governments will start soon."

Asked whether the Japanese economic miracle was over, the Prime Minister said, "In any case, Jaday that he found President Anpanese growth must change its di-rection. HAITI - HOW MUCH HAS REALLY CHANGED? 'Baby Doc' keeps finger on the trigger

By GREG CHAMBEBLAIN TN a bizarre ambiance of guns and flowers, President Jean-Claude

Duvalier of Haiti, the world's youngest president, last week cale-brated his first birthday. The mixture was somehow typically Haitian.

The flowers were iald on as part of a special Flower Carnival, a new feature on the calendar and "accidentally" coinciding with the birthday of the President-for-Life, who is the portly son and successor of François "Papa Doc" Duvalier and, according to official propaganda, the little Caribbean republic's new "messiah." The guns belong to the hundreds of police, soldiers and officials who live inside the handsome white presidential palace with the young President and his all-powerful mother, the country's official First Lady, and who surround them whenever they venture beyond the palace com-pound to make a public appearance. Just to make doubly sure, Jean-Claude these days appears before his people carrying a revolver in his hand, finger on the trigger, just as his notorious father did. Most events in Hait's tortured 168-year history have been accompanied by mur-

clever, to last more than a few weeks in office after the death of weeks in office after the death of his father 15 months ago. able power structure crashing down on all their heads.

On the face of it, there seems little hope for Haiti. In spite of propaganda to the contrary, official corruption and racketeering, presid-ed over by the country's small and wealthy ruling elite, remains at virtually the same level it attained under Papa Doc's rapacious rule, dooming beforehand any honest efforts at progress.

An influx of small-scale re-export industries from the United States, producing such items as brassieres, baseballs and electrical parts, has provided a few thousand jobs around the capital. But the firms, most of them out for a quick pro-fit, make little real contribution to Haiti's economy in the long term, depositing their profits abroad and rarely training local workerrs for management. And the 85 per cent of the population who live outside the capital get no benefit from them.

Refugees fear

Some of the tens of thousands of Haitians who fied Pape Doc's terror have returned from abroad, but almost none of the skilled professional iesperately needed in a country which has only one doctor to every 17,000 people, have dared to go back, for fear of political reprisals.

The ordeal of the Olympic sex test - which in the past has prompted one or two women athletes to withdraw in advance from competition — will now be made considerably easier. The embarrassingly personal appraisal of past Olympics has been replaced by a quick, and simple means of determining sex. All that is needed is a single hair from the head; tests can show whether the owner is male or female. THE WHITE CANE

By ABRAHAM RABINOVICH Jerussiem Post Reporter

WHEN Yohanan Boehm, The Jerusalem Post music Editor, strides into his editor's office with a pistol on his hip to upbraid him about some change in a review, the editor is not likely to be unduly alarmed - at least not on a Friday. On Fridays, Boehm is on duty as a member of Jerussiem's voluntary police force and wears a pistol in line of duky.

For the past three years, Boehm and scores of other veteran Jerusalemites, most of them in their 60s, have been taking to the streets of

Crisis preventative

Davar (Histadrut) explains the Labour Party's position on the coa-lition crisis: "The Labour Party's efforts to prevent a coalition crisis do not stem from fear of elections, but from a desire to avoid superfluous crises. This desire of the Labour Party, however, is no sanction for breaches of agreements or for throwing off the yoke of coa-lition discipline. The Independent Liberals and Mapam would be well advised to give the matter careful consideration. This applies in particular to Mapam, whose moves are likely to break up not only the coalition but the Alignment as well these foci of self-hatred should also be rooted out."

The firm, the Jerusalem District Electric Company Ltd., is incorporated under Jordanian law and supplies East Jerusalem and the Jerusalem and Ramaliah districts. Its complaint to the court states that the West Bank commander had refuse to allow it to implement a 1967 Jordanian law which extended the firm's concession to the Hebron district, and had instead turned the rights over to the Israel Electric Corporation - despite Hebron Mayor Mohammed Ali Ja'abari's request that the Jerusalem firm get the contract

The firm claims that the reason the West Bank commander gave for his refusal - that the Jordanian law had not specified when the extension was to take place - had no grounds both in Jordanian law and in fact. It states that the Jordan government had already given the firm the go-ahead to start stringing a high-tension line to Hebron.

The application also states that the Israel commander exceeded his authority in turning the Hebron concession over to the Israel company, which he did through two administrative orders. It adds that the East Jerusalem company's complaints to the authorities at the time brought no response, The three-man court was com-

Tourism Minister Moshe Kol recalled some of the public activities of Gershon Hanoch, who came to this country from Poland in 1913, and was active in the kibbutz and youth movements. Hanoch worked as a journalist for "Ha'aretz" and "Davar" and from 1934 to 1949 edited the underground Hagana paper "Bamahane." He was closely associated with the establishment of the Habimah Theatre and wrote plays and books. Hanoch died in Jerusalem in 1956.

Dayan: No reason to advance time of general elections

Jerusalem Post Reporter

Defence Minister Moshe Dayan said last night there were no objective reasons for advancing general elections. But he thought it was time the Labour Party embarked on a discussion of basic issues. He said he was ready to take an active part in such party discussions. He was replying to questions at a TV "Moked" press conference.

SEPARATE DECISION

Mr. Dayan said that even if it was decided that "green line" areas Army Chaplain, had compiled new were no longer restricted military districts, this would not automatic-ally mean that the Ikrit and Biram villagers could return. That would need a separate decision. He noted that Prime Minister Golda Meir, following an appeal by Archbishop Raya, had undertaken to take up the question.

Asked about the Akraba incident, Mr. Dayan said his criticism had been over the means used - the (lethal) spraying of crops. There had been a ban on working the land there, in order to detect tracks of marauding gangs (crossing from over the Jordan). The ban would he thought many others were also have been imposed even if it was not too happy with it. "But pernot a training and firing ground.

According to the charges, el-Aideh had been recruited by the Fatah in April 1971 and supplied with the grenade on September 18. On September 19, the eve of the Jewish New Year, he went by bus to Jerusalem and mingled with the crowds in the Old City. He finally threw the grenade in a narrow lane between St. Stephen's and Herod's gates, killing four-year-old Imam Talhani of the Old City and injurpilgrims from the U.S.

Reacting to "certain people" who have been saying certain things of late - the reference is to Mr. Gideon Hausner who seeks to enact civil marriage for people barred from marriage under halacha — Rabbi The man, 20-year-old Shehadeh Shmuel Baruch Werner stated that Hassan el-'Aideh of Shuyukh village he had sat on special rabbinical courts to judge the most complicated issues of marriage, but this issue that a military court would meet had never come up. Mr. Hausner soon to hear his appeal from the had mentioned crushed testicles as one of the cases in point.

On the question of mixed mar-riages and the problems they en-tailed, Rabbi Werner said that the prophesies of those who thought there would be hundreds of mixed couples among the Soviet olim had not been realized. Most of the non-Jewish partners preferred to remain in the U.S.S.R., and the chief problem was in international law, not in halacha, when the batei din in Israel were asked to dissolve the maring 13 other people, four of them riages to enable the immigrant to Arab children and the rest Baptist remarry in Israel. The AVIV. - The chief of the Tel Aviv Police District, Commander Yehuda L. Prag. is retiring from the service on August 15.

Mr. Prag, who has headed the country's largest police district for the past three-and-s-half years, is 57. He said yesterday that his re signation was not connected with the impending retirement of the Police Inspector-General, Mr. Pinhas Koppel. He said he had informed Mr. Koppel of his wish to retire a half-year ago but that he had agreed to stay on a little while longer.

Mr. Prag said he was first going to take a holiday and had no other plans for the time being. (Itim.)
